TODAY IS RELIGIOUS LIBERTY SABBATH: Seventy years ago, after the holocaust, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was signed. Article 18 of the Declaration protects liberty of conscience, religion, and belief. Yet, despite the amazing progress on human rights, religious freedom has deteriorated around the world, so that today, 75% or more of the global population live in nations with little or no religious freedom. They do not have the freedom to choose. Many in those nations can remain part of the majority religion, but will suffer severe consequences if they convert to another faith. Even though Adventists have preached the gospel and planted churches in more than 200 nations in the world, there are still countries where it is very difficult to preach or to have churches.

The Adventist work of protecting and defending religious freedom is needed, now, more than ever! May today’s offering help the message of religious freedom and the mission of Liberty magazine reach its full potential!

FROM MERCER’S: It has been said many times that we are only one prayer away from a breakthrough. But sadly, many people do not believe this.

Is your prayer life stale, vibrant, or possibly even non-existent? No matter what phase you may find yourself in you are sure to be encouraged and motivated as Rick and Cindy Mercer articulate valuable principles to keep your prayer life fresh, relevant, and inspiring!
